MATURE MARGARET

DEMOGRAPHICS:

Age: 52

Gender: Female

Marital Status: Single

Location: New York City

INCOME:

$200,000-$400,000

DIGITAL CHANNELS:

Facebook, Pinterest, Blogs,
Email

EDUCATION:

Obtained an MS Degree in Marketing Science from Columbia University

CAREER BACKGROUND:

Margaret worked for her uncle's finance company out of college, climbing up the ranks to become CMO

OCCUPATION

Current CMO of a finance company based in NYC

MARGARET'S MOTIVATIONS

Social Proof: Since college, Margaret has thrived on routine: the same coffee shop, same gym days, same social scrolls. Now, as a successful professional, as she gets older, she will be ready to invest more into her health/beauty and add more balance to her daily life.

Quote: "I've always believed that taking care of myself comes first. Prioritizing my happiness and health isn't just self-care it's what allows me to stay focused, energized, and grounded every single day."

MARGARET'S AWARENESS STAGE

Trigger:
While scrolling on Facebook before bed, Margaret sees a sponsored ad that says "Don't pause your life. Pause time," showing her a simple step-by-step guide on how it works and what it can do for her

Goal:
Intrigue Margaret with the latest advancements in beauty technology and show her how effortlessly she can pause time for her skin motivating her to click and learn more.

Touchpoints: Display ad in social media spaces likek Facebook and Pintrest. Also in person ads at maybe loreal store fronts and other partner brands.

Pain Points: Margaret being a CMO is very aware of marketing techniques and how they use social aspects to influence thier audience decisions.

Alleviation: Visually striking display ads immediately capture Margaret's attention. At her age, she's eager to try the newest and most advanced beauty technologies, making her highly receptive to innovative product messaging.

MARGARET'S INTREST STAGE

Trigger:

After intercating with intital ad she is taking to the webstie where she reads easy to digest information about the product however no purchase is made and no newsletter signed up for

Goal:

Create lasting recall so Margaret keeps the product top of mind lingering in the back of her head as she thinks about elevating her beauty routine.

Touchpoints: Showcase the website's clean, easy-to-digest design that appeals to Margaret focusing on the health and beauty outcomes she values most, rather than the complexity of the technology behind it.

Pain Points: While she shows the intrest in the product and keeps it in mind there is not intent to purchase at this tiem

Alleviation: Although there is not intent to purchase because of the click to go on the website we now have cookies to reach out to her and give her more targeted ads.

MARGARET'S CONSIDERATION STAGE

Trigger:

After a few weeks she see a couple more ads sprinkled throught pintrest and other socials as well as a sponsored review by a blogger she follows on facebook

Goal:

To keep showing her the product for recall purposes, while also slowly giving more information about it

Touchpoints: The funnel of giving more information slowly over time to give the illusion of self-discovery. A trusted blogger giving a positive review of the product

Pain Points: The product is intriguing to her the high cost is something that even someone of her level is skeptical of.

Alleviation: Through the ads show her that even at the high price point you still get what you pay for, so much so that is seems like a steal.

MARGARET'S DECISION STAGE

Trigger:

After seeing enough ads
margraet decided to final get serious about the product and begins an indepth search of pricing, quality and features.

Goal:

To make sure the product is a good fit for her.

Touchpoints: See watches reviews online from influencers while also reading more on blogs to find out if the product is worth it

Pain Points: Because of the high price point
Margaret is extra critical of any negatvie reviews
she comes across

Alleviation: With mostly postive reviews and very few negative reviews the amount of mind she give to the negative ones shouldn't be much at all

MARGARET'S CONVERSION STAGE

Trigger:
Margaret goes to the official L'oreal page to place an order for the cell bioprint

Touchpoints: Ease of purchase is what will keep her from changing her mind during this final stage. Providing her with the final bit of information with aspects like shipping and tax.

Goal:
To receive the product and use it

Pain Points: Being a more expensive item and tech based the purchase may be more involved than just simply buying new eye-liner.

Alleviation: Make sure everything is easily digestible and walks her through the process step by step with clear instructions

MARGARET'S LOYALTY STAGE

Trigger:
Margaret receives the bioprint and uses it. Now given the results she need products to match her specific needs

Goal:
Given the result of the bioprint recommend her Loreal specific products to bring her into the funnel

Touchpoints: Through the app that is used to keep track of her skins data it promotes Loreal products for her to buy

Pain Points: Just having spent thousands of dollars on this new tech she may be reluctant to buy luxury skin care products from Loreal.

Alleviation: Offer bundles where she can buy everything reccomended at a cheaper rate or make her first skin/beauty care purchase complimentary.

MARGARET'S DISPLAY AD

"Future You" Immersive Ad Experience

Concept:

- A digital experience where users scan their face (via L'Oréal's app) and see a projection of their skin in 5 years with and without Cell BioPrint use.

Goal & Stage of Customer Purchase Journey:

- Spark Margaret's awareness of her need for this product
- Phase 1 of the customer journey

Strategy:

- Mid-article display on Google Search results, skincare blogs, or beauty e-retailers (e.g., Allure, Refinery29, Sephora Community)
- An image of a person with similar demographics will grab Margaret's attention
- The button "CLICK TO SEE YOUR FUTURE SKIN" will direct her to the L'ORÉAL landing page, where she can use the AI experience

MARGARET'S PAID SOCIAL AD

"Don't pause your life. Pause time"

Concept:

- A visual walkthrough of the Cell BioPrint process that is easily digestible for Margaret

Goal & Stage of Customer Purchase Journey:

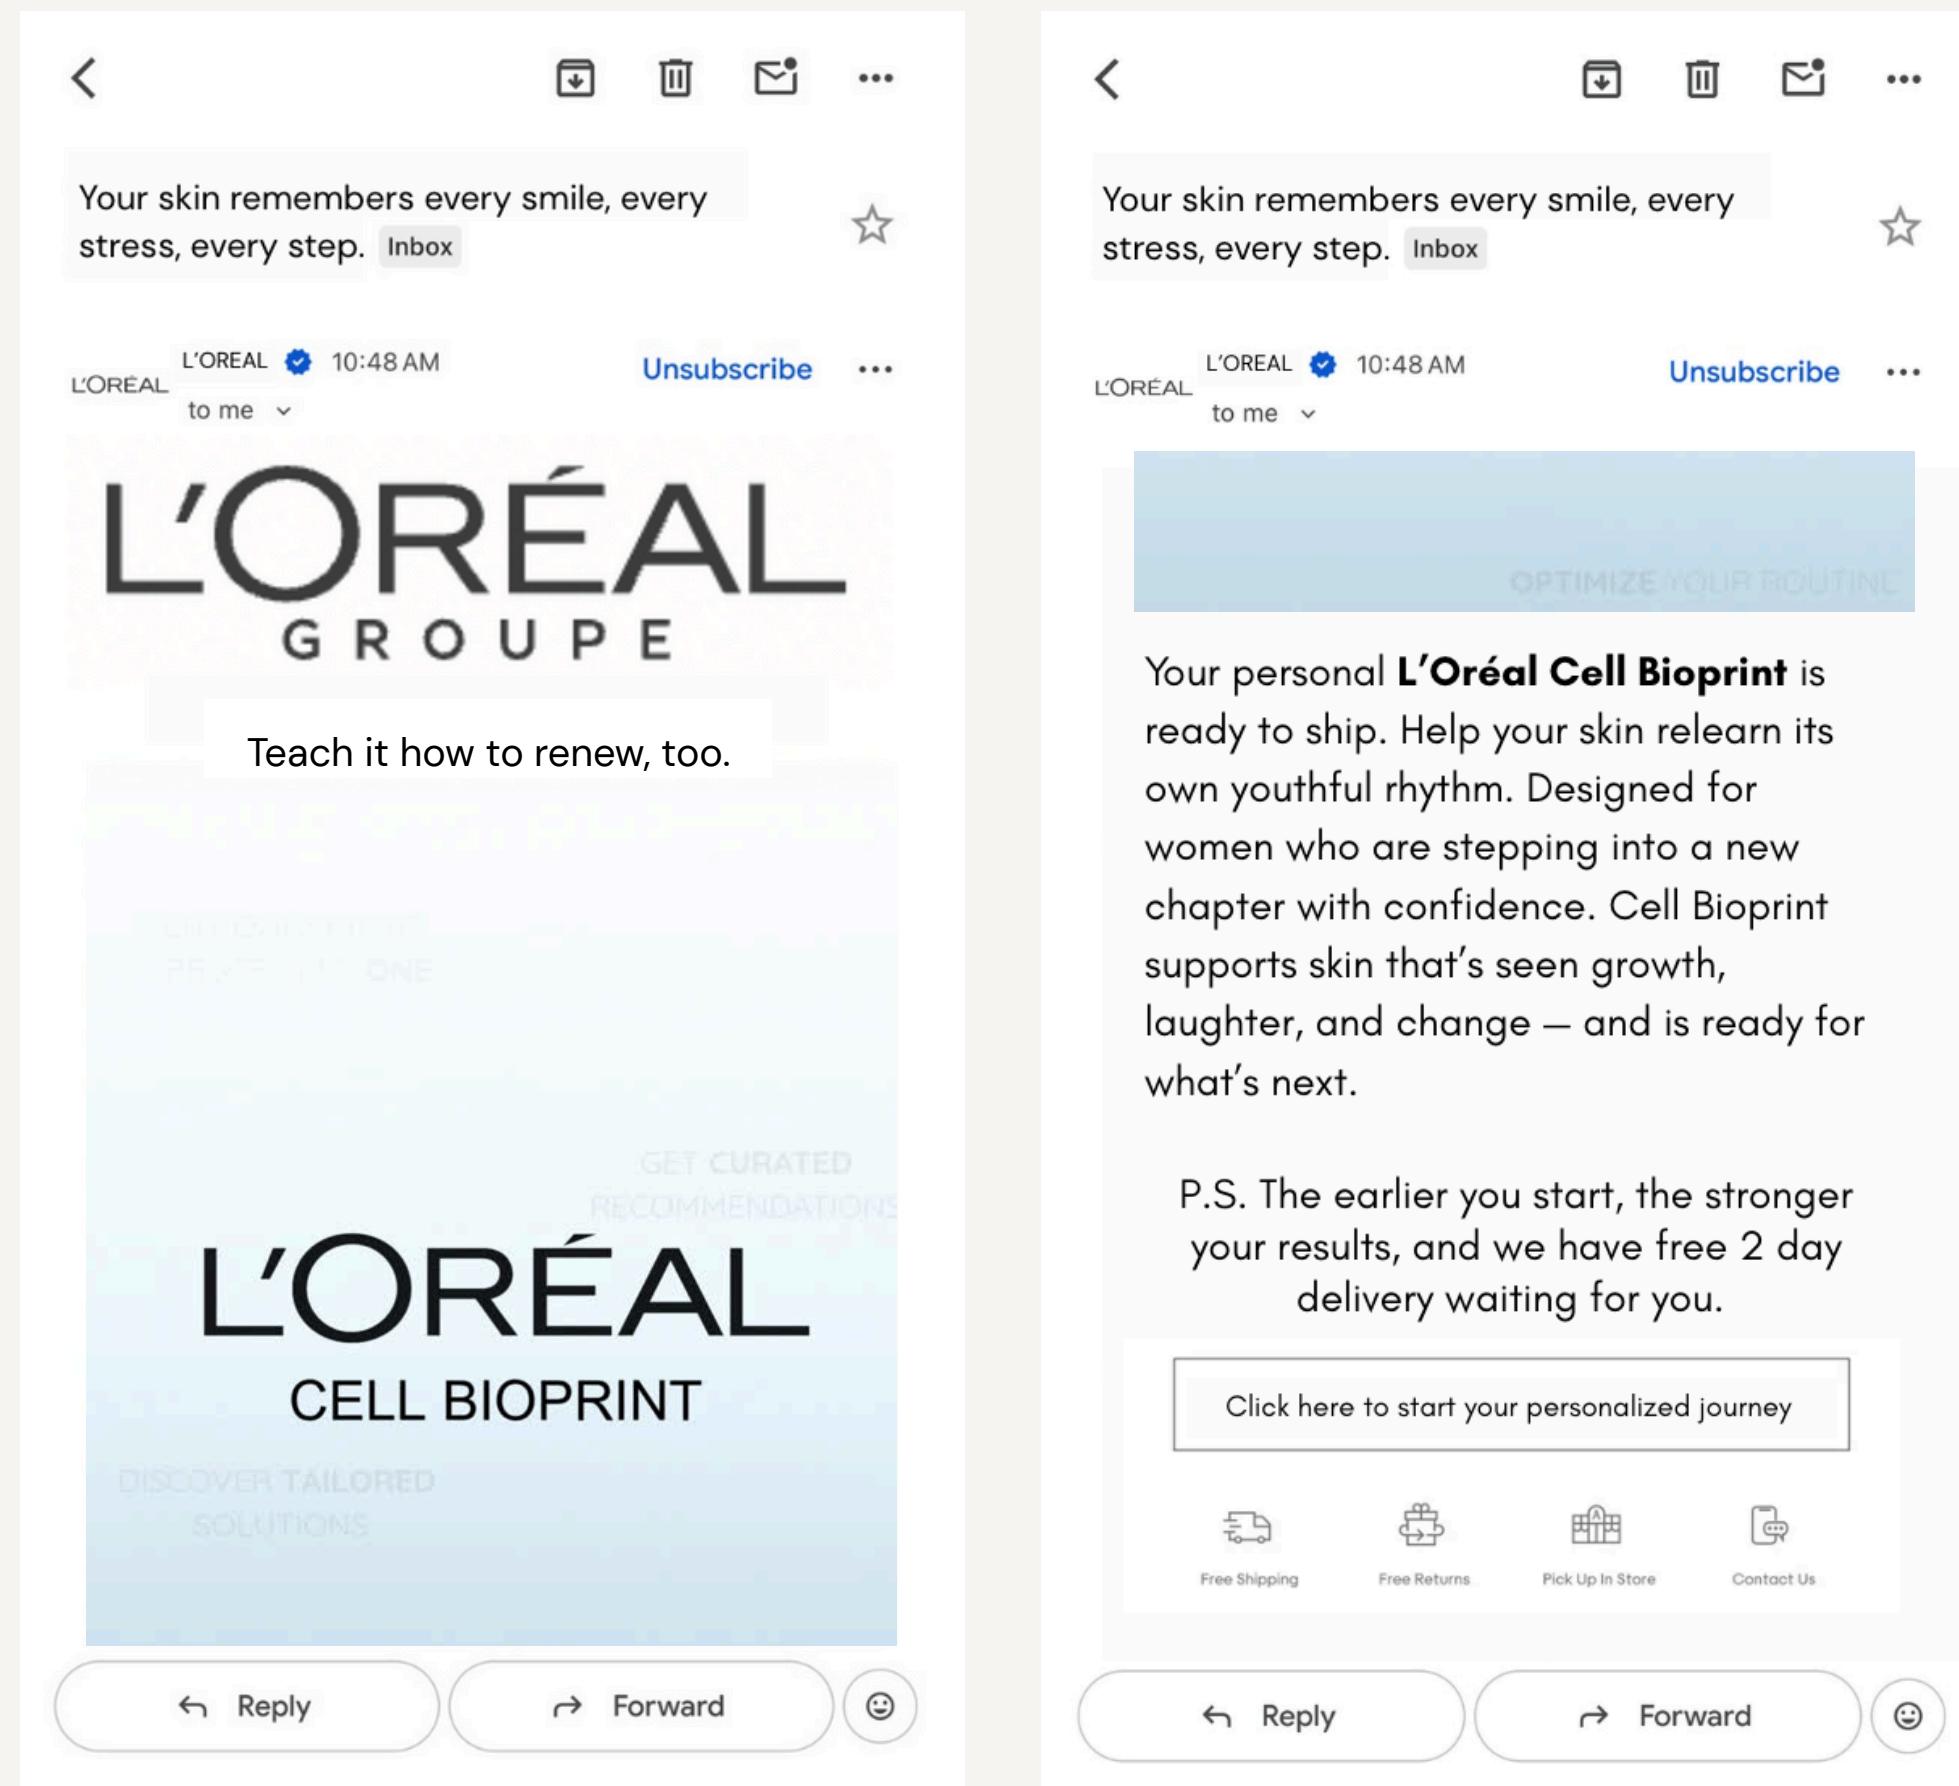

- Provide Margaret with information she needs about how the product works to consider purchasing
- Phase 2 of the customer journey: Margaret is in the information-seeking process

Strategy:

- This ad will be run on Facebook
- Click anywhere on the advertisement and be directed to the landing page, where there is more information

MARGARET'S EMAIL AD

"Your skin remembers every smile, every stress, every step. Teach it how to renew, too."

Concept:

- An email campaign that speaks to Margaret's pain points of aging and will be sent once she has viewed the site and engaged

Goal & Stage of Customer Purchase Journey:

- Drive Margaret back to our site and convert her curiosity into a sale
- Phase 3 of the customer journey: Margaret is ready to purchase the product

Strategy:

- This ad will be sent via Email
- Includes a Call-To-Action
- Responsive design that adjusts to desktop and mobile placements

WEBSITE TRIGGER - DECISION

“Future you will thank present you.”

Concept:

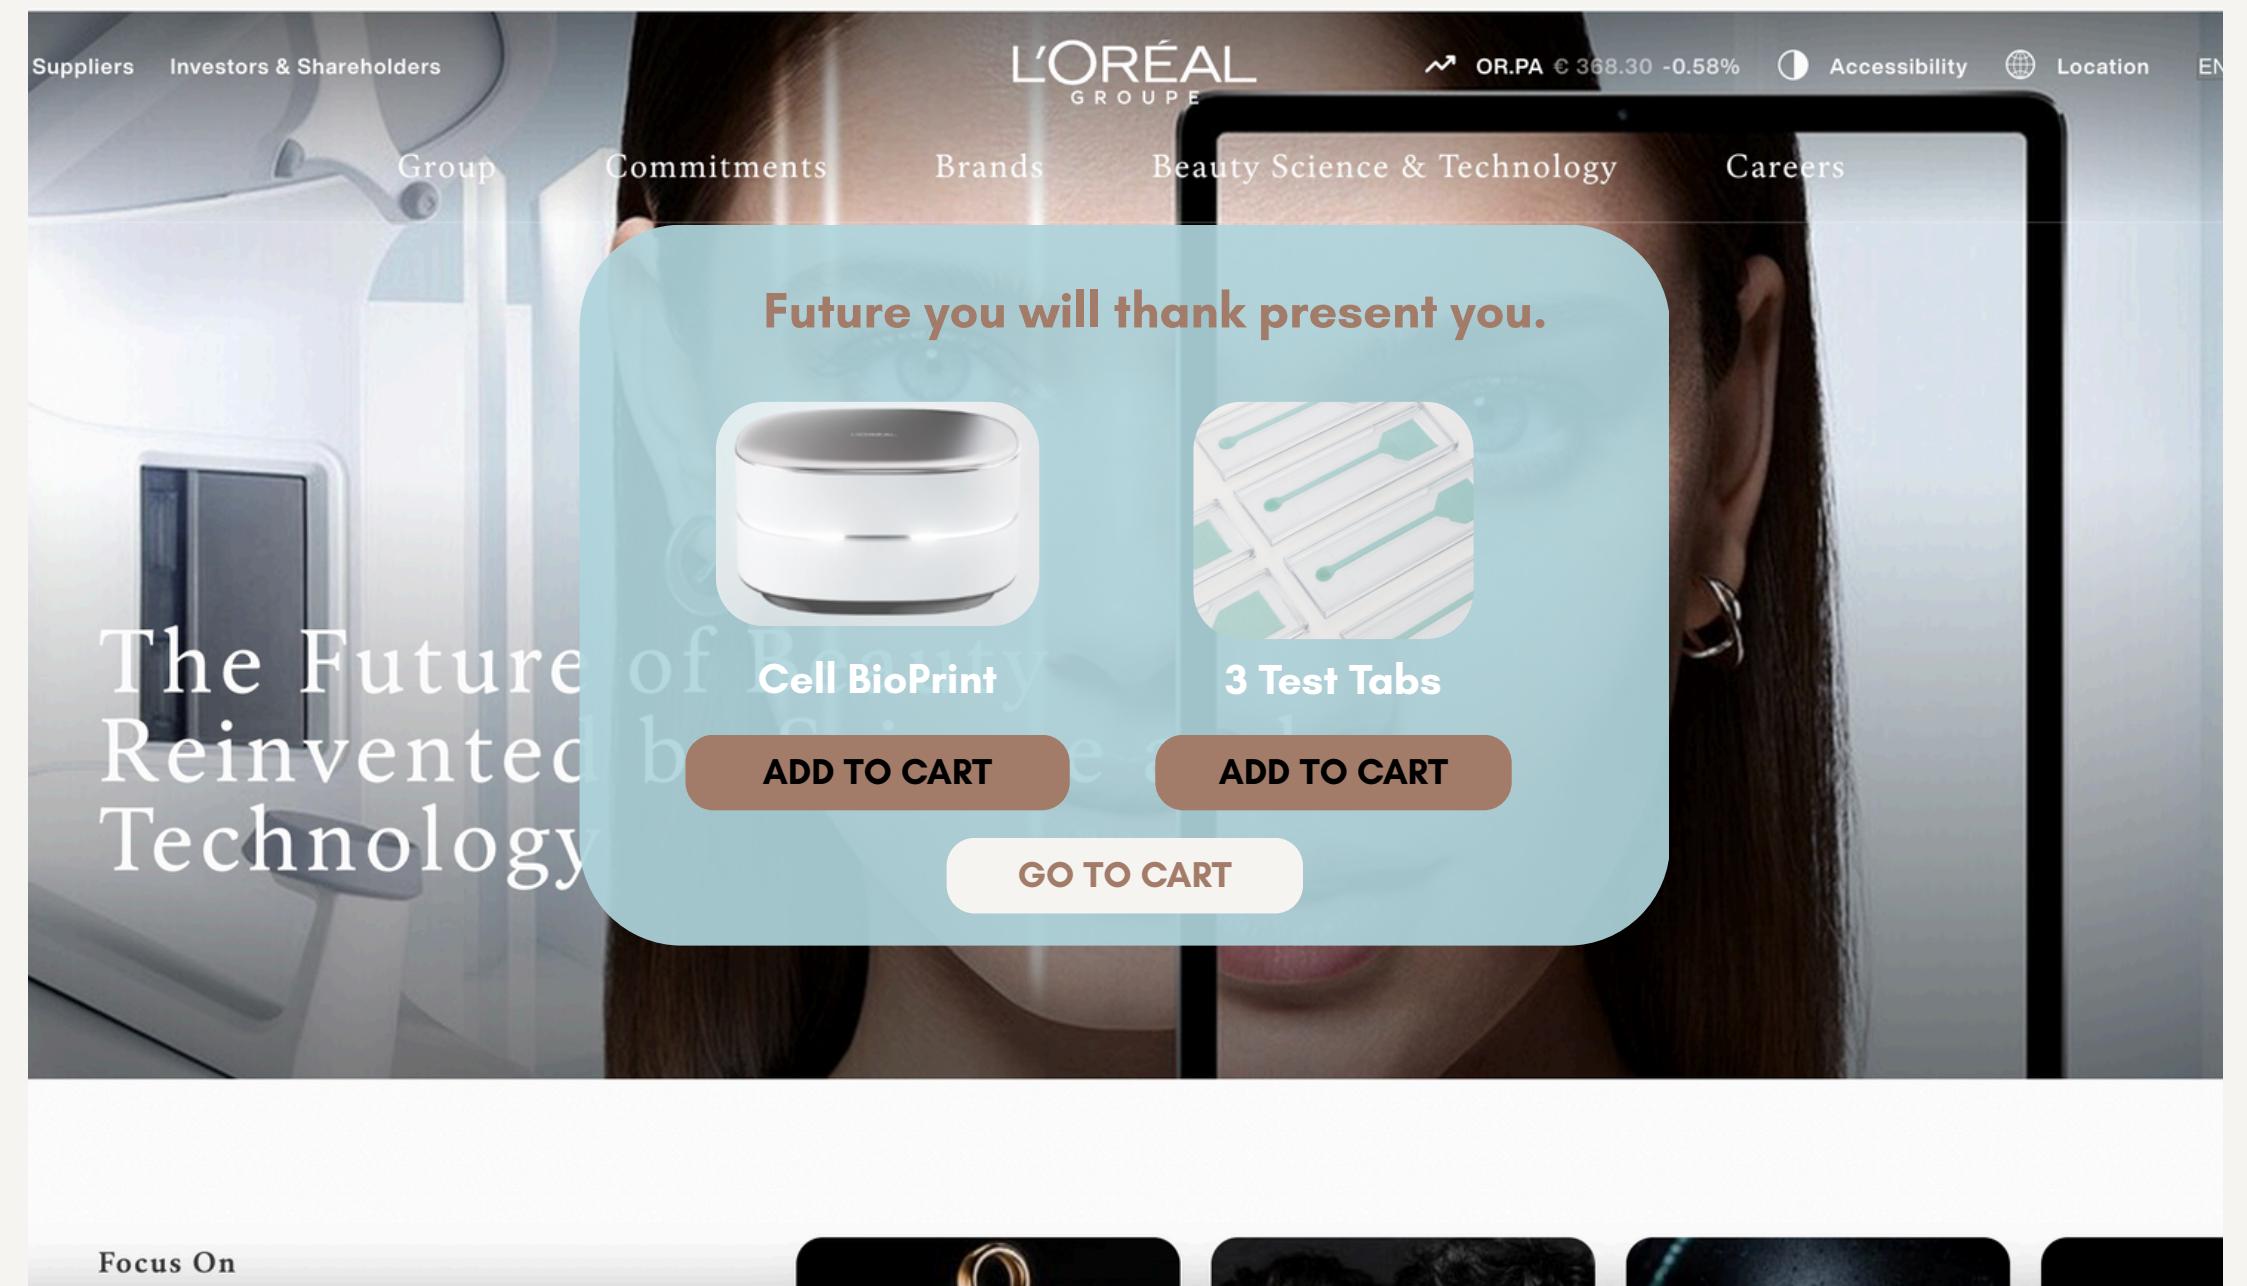

- We will make it as easy as possible for Margaret to purchase our product

Goal & Stage of Customer Purchase Journey:

- We want to lock down Margaret's sale

Strategy:

- Once Margaret is on our website, we prompt an “ADD TO CART” pop-up
- We also want to include other products that can be paired with the Cell BioPrint to strengthen the sale and establish future loyalty

MEDSPA MADISON

DEMOGRAPHICS:

Age: 54

Gender: Female

Marital Status: Married

Location: Los Angeles

INCOME:

$200,000 - $300,000

DIGITAL CHANNELS:

Facebook, LinkedIn, medical journals & aesthetic industry publications, and Instagram

EDUCATION:

Bachelor's in Business Administration, MD and residency in aesthetic medicine

CAREER BACKGROUND:

Madison began her career as a medspa receptionist, where she fell in love with the world of aesthetics. Over the years, she worked her way up and is a respected business owner.

OCCUPATION:

Medspa owner & lead practitioner

MADISON'S MOTIVATIONS

Social Proof: After completing her residency, it was Madison's goal to open her own medical practice. Madison wants to make sure she stays on top of the trends and is able to provide her clients with top-notch treatments and services. Madison is a go-getter and has always been an overachiever.

Quote: "I've always wanted to open my own practice and be able to help others feel confident in their own skin. I want to be able to use the L'Oréal Cell BioPrint as a service to help my clients feel in control of their skin."

MADISON'S AWARENESS STAGE

Trigger:
Madison comes across a clean, professional display ad while reading Aesthetic Medicine Today and sees a social ad on Facebook promoting L'Oréal Cell BioPrint as a next-generation skincare innovation.

Goal:
Capture Madison's curiosity and introduce Cell Bioprint as a credible, medically advanced solution for her practice.

Touchpoints: Display ad in professional journals, Facebook and Instagram sponsored posts, and LinkedIn feed content.

Pain Points: Madison is bombarded by "miracle skincare tech" that lacks data or proof; she needs something scientifically backed and business-viable.

Alleviation: Display ad focuses on sleek product visualization and science-based language ("expert, data-driven results"), while the social GIF quickly demonstrates simplicity and innovation. This prompts her to click Request a Demo or learn more.

MADISON'S INTEREST STAGE

Trigger:
After engaging with the initial ad, Madison clicks through to L'Oréal's site and signs up for the newsletter to stay informed on emerging beauty technologies.

Goal:
Deepen Madison's interest by building credibility through content that feels professional, not promotional.

Touchpoints: Website landing page, email signup pop-up ("Look How You Feel"), and confirmation email with exclusive insights.

Pain Points: She's interested, but skeptical. Madison needs to see how this fits within clinical practices and whether it's FDA-approved or profitable.

Alleviation: A sleek landing page highlights L'Oréal's research and data, while the newsletter signup gives her early access to case studies and webinar invites that position Cell Bioprint as trusted innovation.

MADISON'S CONSIDERATION STAGE

Trigger:
Madison receives a follow-up email explaining how Cell Bioprint can streamline her patient services and improve outcomes, along with a discount code for early partners.

Goal:
Shift Madison from curiosity to commitment by showing ROI and trust from other medspa owners.

Touchpoints: Post-newsletter signup email ("Unleash Your Best Skin"), abandoned cart email ("Don't Miss Out!"), and case study links.

Pain Points: She worries about high startup costs, staff training, and integration into her current treatments.

Alleviation: The follow-up email provides proof of reliability and ease of use through peer testimonials, while the abandoned cart message uses motivational phrasing and a small incentive code ("GLOWUP") to push her toward completing a demo or purchase.

MADISON'S DECISION STAGE

Trigger:
Madison has engaged with the brand through emails and product pages. After watching the "Meet Amy" video and reading case studies, she schedules a 1:1 demo to learn how Cell Bioprint fits into her medspa.

Goal:
Build confidence and remove the final barriers that keep her from purchasing.

Touchpoints: Personalized sales email, LinkedIn follow-up message, demo booking page, and the "Get 15% Off" pop-up offer.

Pain Points: She's concerned about the learning curve for her staff, patient demand for bioprinting, and whether the investment will yield fast returns.

Alleviation: The sales team provides a customized demo that shows ROI projections and an onboarding timeline. The incentive email reassures her with professional design and a clear CTA.

MADISON'S CONVERSION STAGE

Trigger:
Madison revisits the landing page after receiving a personalized discount code and watches a video titled "Meet Amy: Discover the Magic of Cell Bioprint."

Goal:
Convert Madison's growing interest into a sale or partnership trial.

Touchpoints: Product landing page with video, follow-up email with purchase link, and automated thank-you confirmation.

Pain Points: She needs reassurance that onboarding is easy and that support is provided post-purchase.

Alleviation: The conversion funnel emphasizes smooth implementation – clear CTA ("Shop Now"), complimentary shipping, and follow-up email reinforcing professional support and app integration for ongoing use.

MADISON'S LOYALTY STAGE

Trigger:
After receiving her order, Madison gets a “Your Package is Here” email encouraging her to download the Cell Bioprint app and leave a review.

Goal:
Strengthen long-term loyalty, encourage repeat purchases, and position her as a brand advocate.

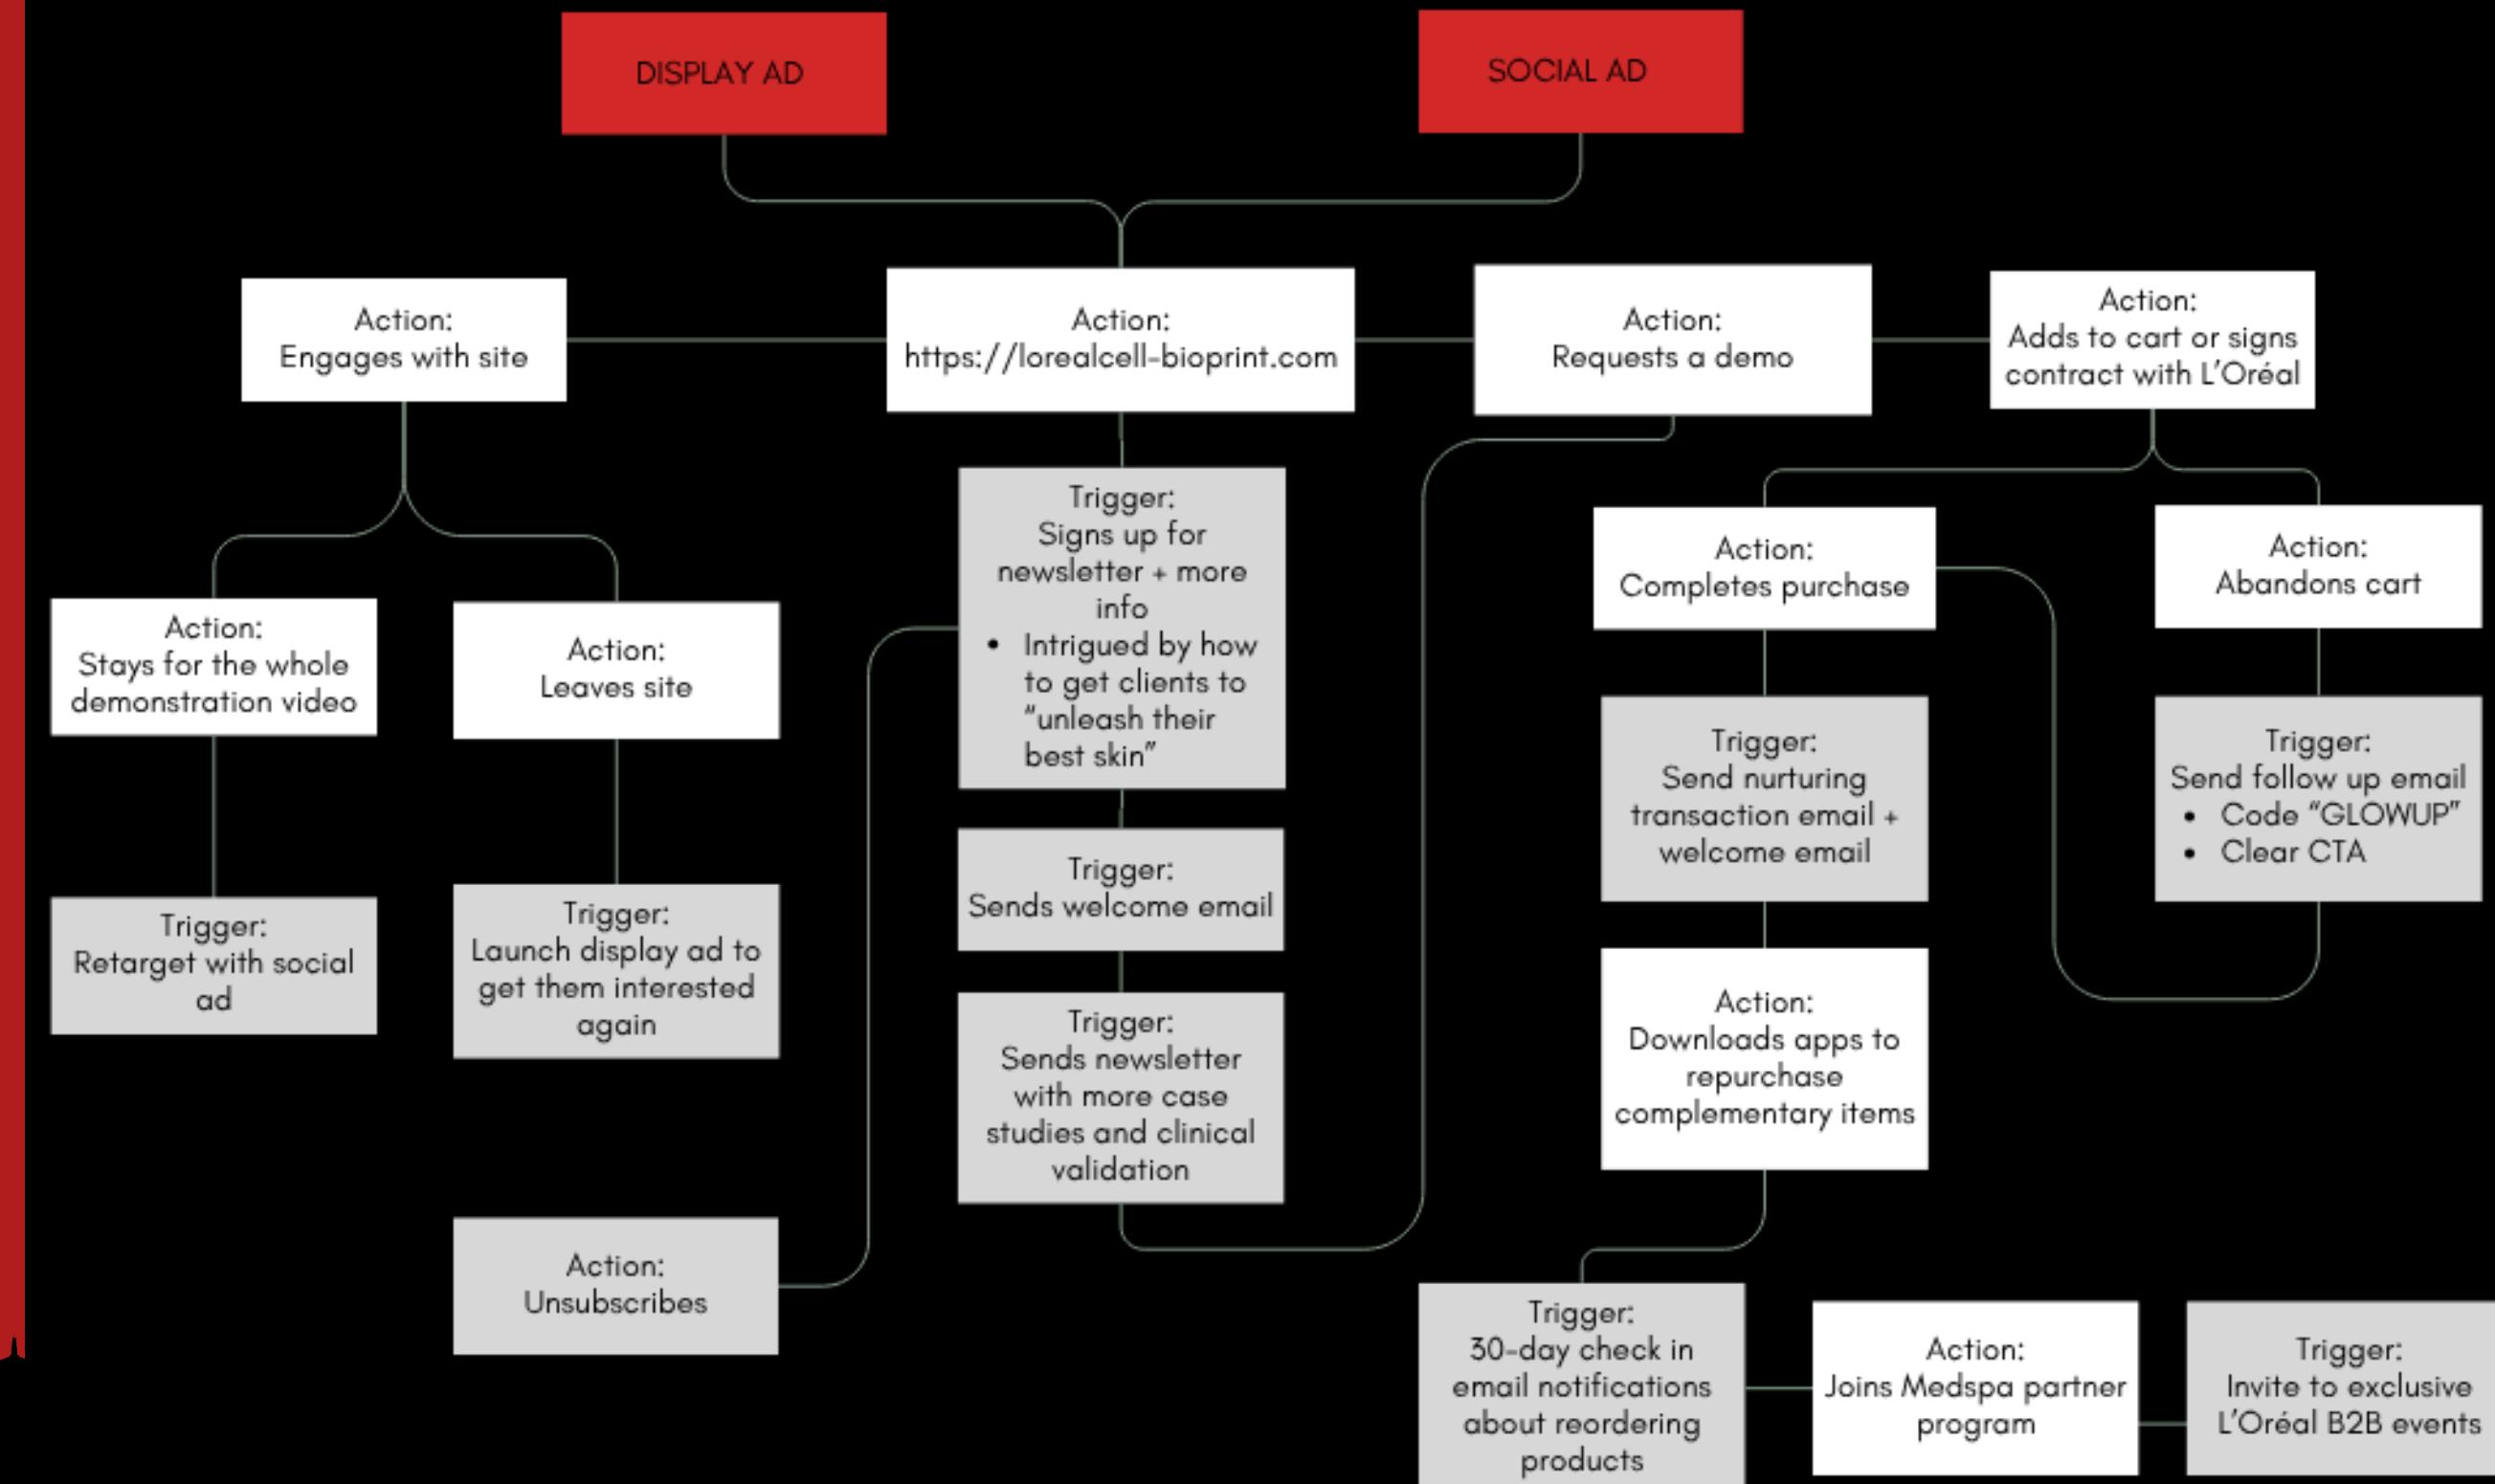

Touchpoints: Post-delivery email, app onboarding, review incentive (“30% off refill”), and referral invites for other medspa owners.

Pain Points: Madison wants continued support and fresh reasons to stay connected beyond the first purchase.

Alleviation: Emails emphasize exclusive perks (refills, training invites), while app notifications personalize her product experience – keeping her engaged with L’Oréal’s innovation cycle and inspiring advocacy.
